Warns Sending Arms To Congo U.N. Violation

-Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold Thursday delivered a stern warning to Belgium that interference in the internal affairs of the Congo was a violation of Security Council decisions binding upon all U.N. members.

The warning was addressed to Ambassador Walter Loridan, Belgian U.N. delegate, as the Council prepared for emergency discussions to clarify the U.N. role in the troubled African country.

Hammarskjold was under sharp attack from Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba, from the Soviet Union and from Yugoslavia. He in turn was pressing for new Council steps to halt the flow of outside aid to the warring factions.

U.N. officials said the Council probably would meet Saturday in a session which might last into

In his latest communication to the Belgian government, the secretary-general said he had received confirmed reports that nine tons of weapons were unloaded Wednesday from a Belgian Sabena Airlines plane at the Elisabethville airport in the secessionist province of Katanga.

Hammarskjold asked the Belgian representative to tell him whether the Belgian government had authorized the sending of weapons to the provincial authorities.

One-Sided Senate Confidence Vote Emboldens Premier

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo. (AP)-Backed by a smashing Senate confidence vote. Premier Patrice Lumumba Thursday night called for U.N. forces to get out of the Congo unless the United Nations changes its policies.

He accused the U.N. of obstructing his government by closing airports and radio stations and denounced what he called a campaign of hate against the Congo.

Lumumba told a news conference he had sent a telegram to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskiold asking that the next session of the U.N. Security Council be held in Leopoldville.

He thanked the Soviet Union "sincerely for the help it has given to the Congo" and assailed a list of actions by the United Na-

Lumumba's main immediate difference with the U.N. is over the fact that U.N. forces hold Congo radio stations and airports. U.N. forces seized the Leopoldville radio Tuesday after President Joseph Kasavubu and Lumumba, in turn, had used it Monday night, each declaring the other was fired. The U.N. acted on the principle that rival hot-headed broadcasts amounted to incitement to violence.

The U.N. blocked the Congo airfields, also on Tuesday, to stop the ferrying of Congolese forces about the country in troop-carrier planes, some of them the Iron Curtain.

The U.N. command said it had decided to exercise more effective control under its mandate fromthe Security Council because of the growing crisis.

Billion Americans In Next 90 Years?

A current decrease in the nation's baby crop is being assessed in some quarters as bad news for the economy. Business, it is said, has geared its pace to the rising demands created by ever more bodies to be clothed, nourished.

The U. S. Public Health Service estimates that the number of American babies born alive in 1960 will be 4,203,000, as compared with 4.282,000 last year. But it does not expect the current drop in births to continue for long because there is no evidence of a trend toward smaller families. In short, another spurt of births is in prospect by the mid-1960s as the "boom babies" of the early postwar years start forming families of their own.

Some population experts frankly welcome even a short respite from the propelled birth rate. They contend the nation needs to catch up with the unfulfilled public needs of its already burgeoning population.

A recent nation-wide survey showed that American wives expected, on the average, a total of between 2.7 and 3.3 children for their families, with 3.0 the most probable number. Only 7 per cent of the wives expected six or more children, an indication that the proportion of truly large families will not increase.

What does the "fraction of a child" so dear to the demographer's heart mean in terms of national growth? The Population Reference Bureau estimates that if married women have an average of three children the population of the United States will rise from 180 million in 1960 to about 600 million by the year 2050. But if the average is 3.3 children, population will reach the billion mark by that time! And it should be remembered that even with the current decrease in the birth rate the nation's population is increasing at the rate of 25 million persons every eight and one-half years.

An Englishman Sees Us

Usually British journalists who come to this country write about us as though we were Fiji islanders or Congolese; in fact, they show more understanding of the Fijis. There is so much looking down their noses that they do not see what is before them. Too often about all they see is that New Yorkers or Washingtonians are different from Londoners. There are, of course, exceptions. Perhaps the greatest correspondent Great Britain ever sent us was Sir Willmott Lewis whose influence in both countries was enormous. And he was as knowledgeable in American affairs as any American

Recently Peregrine Worsthorne came to the United States for "The Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" of London and he has done a series of articles about us which are particularly noteworthy and worthwhile. He arrived when a daily newspaper and a weekly magazine were producing some froth about our "national purpose"-an ambiguous and purposeless phrase. Of this, Worsthorne wrote:

"I cannot pretend that I actually asked any Americans about this, because to my mind the phrase is odiously reminiscent of those societies-Communist, Fascist and Caesarist-which dress up a diet of propaganda dust and ashes with a highsounding sauce called 'the national purpose.' . . ."

Quite so. Unless the journalist wandered among the self-anointed Park Avenue intellectuals who constitute a tiny segment of American life-but a very noisy one -he would find few Americans who wondered about our national purpose. Instead he saw substantial Americans and came to this conclusion:

"Here, it seemed to me, was a society in which men and women, families and communities, are realising the good life not in the past or the future, not in slogans or statistics, not in terms of ideology and propaganda, but actually on the ground, in their flesh and blood lives here and now. They are so busy living that they have no time for political oratory. Having got to the heart of the package they can afford to throw away the tinsel wrapping. For them Christmas Day is over. The dazzling gifts have passed into every-

'Experts tell us that the Soviet Union is a land of promise and expanding production. Other experts tell us that America is a land of disappointment and contraction. All I can say is: 'Pity the country whose glories only experts can detect, and envy the country whose faults it takes an expert to discover.'

This panegyric might do the British some good, for just as it used to be popular for Americans to twist the lion's tail, so, in recent years, has it been the habit of British journalists to pluck the feathers of the American eagle. It is not usual for a British writer to capture the spirit of the American people-a spirit which is overlarded by the defeatism of certain internationalist groups in this country who, having become Russophiles, are discouraged that Russia did not prove out to be the savior of civilization. And for that they blame the "Traveling through the Middle West by Greyhound bus I was invited by my neighbour to stop over for the night at his small suburban home. He was a travelling salesman-by our classifications distinctly lower-middle-class - who had for some months been saving up to buy a small yacht. The next morning he took his family and me for a sail on Lake Michigan. There was nothing 'materialistic' about the joy and spiritual release, the surge of the spirit, which sailing afforded that family. As a result of their prosperity they-and millions like them-are experiencing a new depth to life."

These families were not wallowing in a pig They were drinking at the fountains of their

I could go on quoting from these articles. Suffice it that this writer captured something about this country that others have missed. He travelled about where he could meet Americans, not those who follow the seasons internationally. He ought to come again and see more of us. We need such interpreters of our ways, particularly among the British who are our partners, for better or for worse.

VOTE DRIVE - At least one commentator has expressed the view, half humorously, half sericusly, that get - out - the - vote drives are bad because persons with so little interest in voting would probably make the wrong choices, anyway.

But, come campaign time, candidates cast a longing eye on that segment of the population that is qualified to cast the ballot but fails to for a variety of reasons, or for no reason at all. This political year is no exception. A few figures tell why. In 1958 there were upwards of 100 million eligible voters in the U.S., but only 46 million votes were cast. In 1956, with much the same potential, and with the added appeal of a presidential contest, only 62 million votes were cast -and this was a record for the United States.

Obviously, if a candidate or a

Mormon Prophet, 87, Rules Over Business Empire, Loves Fast Cars

(Editor's note - While Drew Pearson is taking a brief vacation, his column is being written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON - Late one evening, a black Cadillac swept over the open highway that bisects the salt desert west of Salt Lake The distinguished, whitehaired passenger stole a cautious glance at his wife to make sure she was asleep, then whispered impishly to the chauffeur: "Now let's see what this car will do!" David Oman McKay, the ninth Mormon Prophet, takes an honest delight in the rising hum of a fine engine and the song of tires on the road. The fact that his chauffeur was at the wheel was a concession to an anxious family and friends who, knowing his taste for speed, had persuaded him to use a driver on overnight

The incident serves to introduce one of America's most remarkable churchmen. David O. McKay has been traveling far and fast most of his 87 years. On his birthday (Thursday) he has scarcely slowed down.

"My boy." he told his son Llewelyn who urged him to take his work more easily, "when you stop, you're dead.'

A Modern Moses

Formally speaking, McKay is president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. But to more than a million Mormons around the world, he is as much a prophet as Moses or Abraham. Like the prophets of old, he is right of the company to subcontract out its work. This is the issue with Mike Quill's union-subcontracts, for example, for the dismantling of obsolete mechanisms. There are several other minor issues, but those two are the major ones. That's why I say that in the face of the nationwide settlement in behalf of 875,000 employes already made on these points by all the other major railroad unions, this strike is indefensible. Quill is a Johnny-comelately in the railroad industry, and this is the only contract he has of any size with any major

If the Pennsylvania strike continues and things get bad enough, there could be a special session of Congress called by the President, but the administration here still believes the processes of reason will bring a settlement within the next few days.

It always takes a long time when the heart trembles. When I got the number, the operator was reluctant to connect me with maternity. "Let me speak to the nurse," I said.

"She had her haby." I swallowed. "What was it?" I said. "Just a minute," she said. "I'll check. I said: "Wait a minute. How is my daughter?" but she had gone. With much muttering, the architects went back to their boards, sharpened their pencils, and found they could carry out his order.

Although McKay's family and assistants try to shield him, his door is open to any Mormon no matter how humble.

Once as he was about to turn in for the night, a weeping woman appeared at his door. He listened sympathetically as she sobbed out a story of marital trouble. Then he phoned her husband.

"Could you drop by my house?" The awestruck husband hurried over to the Prophet's house where McKay stayed up past midnight resolving their quarrel Another time, while touring England on a busy schedule, he

He turned to sign the autograph, but the disappointed girl had vanished. Two dozen missionaries were sent to comb the crowd for a girl in a blue dress. But she couldn't be found.

Next day, the child was still uppermost in McKay's mind. He asked the head of the British mission to find her and send her autograph book to him. He was not at ease until the autograph was signed several days later.

For 59 years, McKay has been sustained by his wife, Emma Ray McKay, whom he met while boarding at her home during university days. She cooks all his meals (he dislikes to eat out) with one exception: the yogurt he prepares himself before going to bed. He has never persuaded the family to share his enthusiasm for what he calls "clabber milk." She is always present when he preaches from the Great Tabernacle pulpit, and travels with him whenever possible. She says of him: "He is as courteous to me now as he was when we were courting." David O. McKay has led his fellow Mormons now for nine fruitful years. Their prayer is that he should sit in his booklined office behind the old rolltop desk that once belonged to Brigham Young for seven times that number.
